The site works by creating a bunch of different styles

using a wide range of different Unicode characters. So technically you're not really creating fonts, but instead I guess you could say you're creating Instagram-compatible Unicode glyphs :) Want to know more about Unicode? Read despite the... Unicode computers must store all data in binary format - that is, with zeros as well. So every at the moment is stored on my server as a series of zeros and these. This must go from my server to your browser, and your browser needs to understand what these zeros and these. 01100001 = a, 01100010 = b, etc., but this changed in the 1980s with the formation of unicode is an organization of international standards that works toward a global specification for text characters. Before unicode was created, everyone had their own ways of storing and rendering text, and so whenever two programs from different developers or organizations had to talk to each other, they had to build a translator so that they could understand which codes refer to which text characters. Unicode had a bit of a tough time though, because all the different organizations didn't want to change their entire system around just to comply with this new spec. So Unicode had to introduce a bunch of different sets of symbols to support legacy systems. Over time, the number of symbols has increased to tens of thousands, and today we are moving into hundreds of thousands. Emojis that appear all the time come from the Unicode workgroup. That's how we ended up. such a great and strange/fun series of symbols, and that's why you're here! I've put together a bunch of fonts on Instagram that should be fun to play with and use on your resume. You may want to mix and match certain parts of different font styles. Text fonts or text symbols? ASCII characters are the first 128 Unicode symbols, and these are the things you're reading right now. But there are a lot more than 128 symbols in Unicode, and it just so happens that there are quite a few they look a bit like the normal Latin alphabets are often not perfect – they are basically Unicode hacks that take advantage of various symbols from different sets all across the 100k+ symbols in the template. The term font actually refers to a set of graphics that correspond to some or all Unicode glyphs. You've probably heard of Comic Sans and Arial - these are fonts. What you copy and paste above are actually symbols that exist in each font. Thus, the calligraphic text and other fancy letters you see above are actually a separate characters? Well, you do! Because if they were just normal fonts), then you wouldn't be able to copy and paste them! You can't copy and paste some Comic Sans into your Instagram CV because the symbols you copied will just be normal ASCII characters, and the fact that they are rendered in one font on one website. However, if there is a unicode character set that resembles a specific font, or has a specific style (e.g. bold, italic, calligraphic, etc.), then we can use them to mimic a font that will work on different Web pages when you copy and paste these fonts. So, really, if it were to be really pedicure, this site would be called pseudo instagram fonts. But today's name gets the point across, and it's nice and short :) So, anyway, that's why you can copy and paste these fonts into Instagram. Compatibility One last note: You may notice that some of the fancy letters and symbols - probably because they don't want people to abuse certain Unicode things, such as the excessive tokens used in the glitch text font that you'll see on the list. Okay, that's all for now, guys! I hope you find all these Instagram fonts useful! You can continue to click this button to show more and you will continue to randomize all the different symbol alphabets throughout the If you have an elegant text font that you've created or want to share some comments, share it here.
